

Central Valley Harvest Trails

*From our fields to your table,
a guide to direct market commodities*
2023

Welcome

The Central Valley Harvest Trails is a Stanislaus County Farm Bureau tradition, serving as a directory of the locally grown produce available to consumers. In these times of imported fruits & vegetables and mass urbanization, it is vital that Central Valley growers make local, quality produce available at unbeatable prices.

We've contacted growers from all over the Central Valley and asked them to make their products known to you in this publication. Growers were happy to list the fresh, homegrown products available at their stands, markets and shops. Armed with that information and the locations and hours of these growers and vendors, you have everything you need for a fun and casual day trip around our beautiful Central Valley and foothills.

It's easy to get caught up in the fast pace of our lives but it's important to spend a little time with the simpler pleasures and our beautiful region is full of them! Harvest Trails is your tool to do just that, your ticket back to a time where people worked hard for a living and family and friends were all that mattered. So head out on the Central Valley Harvest Trails and visit the families who grow your food!

Harvest Trails is published as an annual supplement to the Stanislaus Farm News, and is sponsored by the Stanislaus County Farm Bureau.

Additional copies of this publication can be obtained at no charge at the Stanislaus County Farm Bureau office as well as at many of the listed grower's establishments.

Special thanks to everyone on staff who has helped make the 2023 Harvest Trails a success. Their efforts, combined with the forward thinking of the Stanislaus County Farm Bureau Board of Directors has resulted in getting Harvest Trails out to a much wider audience. Its readership now reaches Tuolumne, Merced and San Joaquin counties.

Your comments and ideas are welcome and will be carefully considered. If you are a grower and are interested in being a part of Harvest Trails, please call the SCFB office at (209) 522-7278.
